WRITING

A lot of people enjoy playing computer games in their free time, but for some it is better than life. In my opinion, computer games cannot give the same amount of fun as life in some situations, make you happy as much as you can or give the best advice. Just because life can be so random, you can't expect everything. Something great might happen, and you will be closer to your goals, or something bad occurs where you can learn from mistakes. Computer games can give a variety of great stories or helpful advice, but they are made by humans, so they cannot give you limitless amounts of experience as life can. In conclusion, computer games are good, they can provide many moments of fun, or make you think, but they cannot give you as much as life can.
