ANSWER SHEET

Many people argue what is better: city's opportunities or village's nature. In this project we will analyze some data on the subject - major advantages of living in a city.

The most often-chosen answer among responders is better opportunities for work and study. It's true because big cities require a lot of workers in different fields. In rural places there's a small group of jobs that are needed and their salary isn't that high.

For people it's also important to have access to various entertainments and events. Even the most hard-working person need to relax time to time. In a city you can choose any kind of a free-time activity.

However, with all this basic advantages there are disadvantages of living in a city. The problem associated with money can arise at any time. Losing a job, salary becoming lower and goods getting expensive are very common things. To prevent it you always need to have extra money. Even a little penny can be useful at hard times. It's not only a person's fault, but government's. They must create more charity sources. Every stranger need to be empathatic towards homeless people because you never know if you could be on their place.

During making this project I understood my opinion. I like having many opportunities, better facilities and events around me. For me it's important to have a freedom in choosing. But I will be more careful with spending money and will try to find well-paid and stable job.
