ANSWER SHEET

Living in a city and in a country side has always been different since the day they separated from each other. Both have their pros and cons, but the focus will be on cities.

The most popular example - cities have better opportunities for work and study. And it's not surprising, due to the fact that almost all best education and most paying jobs are concentrated in big cities. While it doesn't mean country side doesn't have these things at all, but it still pales in comparison to the level of big cities.

Another popular example is that cities have all the modern conveniences. It's absolutely true, in addition all these needs are close to each other, making it easy to reach them if needed. Country side on the other hand lacks many of these conveniences and sometimes they aren't that easy to reach.

However it isn't all shine and rainbows. Cities often suffer pollution problems and overall are noisy and crowded. That's why I suggest visiting country side once in a while, as it can be quite positive for both mental and physical health.

In conclusion I'd like to say that while life in a big city is obviously a lot better, it doesn't mean that country side is inferior to cities, because despite all the advantages city has, it still can give something valuable, something that city will never give.
