My New York Trip

...I think I'd like to start at the place where it all started historically. I mean the original site of the Dutch fort – to spend some time at the (36) _____ Park, (37) _____ Seaport, have a look at the Bull in (38) _____.

It might be a great idea to walk further north to stand upon the most impressive (39) _____ Bridge over the running waters of the (40) _____ River, like that girl, Holly, in Truman Capote's book. I don't think my attitude to life is anywhere close to Holly's, and what I really enjoy, besides seeing new places, is literature and arts.

That's why I would like to walk through the streets of that famous bohemian place – (41) _____ Village, with its peculiar houses and streets lined with green trees. I know there isn't much chance to see real people of art there, except the students of (42) _____ University which is situated right there, but still – there are so many names and associations. I wouldn't miss the center of the Village – (43) _____ Square – you know, there's a famous novel of the same name by (44) _____ that I really like.

When you think of New York, you definitely imagine a picture of all those huge skyscrapers standing close to each other. When in Midtown, I would certainly go to the top observation deck of the (45) _____ Building. One can see much of the city from there, and the feeling must be unique.

I've made a point of visiting some art museums – the (46) _____, of course, because it is the largest and the most famous; and perhaps the (47) – _____: it's a museum of modern art named after a business person who founded it, though for me the most interesting idea has come from the architect (48) _____, who designed it so that the whole building hasn't got a single staircase – only winding passages to spiral upwards and downwards. Fantastic, isn't it?

Then, in the evening, I'd prefer a Broadway show in a theater somewhere near (49) _____ Square, a musical perhaps; I've heard so much about their superb quality. And after that why not head (50) _____ to Little Italy or Chinatown to try an evening meal in an authentic setting...
